Working to INform Guide and Support Those Who Have Been Sexually Abused Within the Fellowship of Friends and Workers

Admitted Offender Still Not Prosecuted

WINGS has posted previously about admitted abuser Robert Corfield, who was a worker in Canada and USA.

BBC News has just published another article about Corfield, noting that he still hasn't been charged despite admitting his child sexual abuse (CSA) offending. Corfield had admitted the abuse of a child for six years, starting when the child was 12.

Corfield previously claimed that it was only against a single victim. Now another victim has reported that he was also abused by Corfield, about a decade prior to the first reported victim. The second reported victim tried to tell his parents at the time but they "refused to have anything to do with that, because he was a preacher and he could do no wrong."

Corfield sent a letter to one victim saying that he was preparing a list of victims, thus confirming that he didn't just abuse a single child.

Overseer Dale Shultz and other overseers are implicated in concealing the crime. Corfield was shifted across the border to the US state of Montana where he continued as a worker for 25 years.

At this stage neither RCMP nor FBI have charged Corfield, and there is no information as to why this hasn't occurred.

WINGS readers may wish to write original personal letters to Saskatchewan's Minister of Justice and Attorney General, Hon. Tim McLeod, K.C. jus.minister@gov.sk.ca expressing concern about the inaction against the alleged criminal and possible conspirators.
